"A WESTHER ALMSAC—Ms. MISSISS OUT AGAIN.—Mr. E. MERIAM has turned up again in print—and this time actually and trady in a book, full of sound, sensible matter, and not open to the criticism that has been visited upon his daily weather squibs. The New York Almsance and Westher-Book for 1807 is published by Mason Brothers, in a nearly bound pocket volume, which sells for 25 cents. It combines all the tables and calculations that properly belong to the Almanac, superadded to which is a meteorological record for every hour in the year part, up to the list hast, prepared by the indefatigable Meriam. Certain prognostications of weather are food for the cortions, and Mr. Meriam describes his places of observation, to show the facilities he enjoys for making his calculations.
"The careful compiler of the statistical matter of this little volume has displayed great judgment in the selection. Tables of latitude and longitude, city information, list of Banks and Insurance Companies in the leading cities, lists of newspapers in the Union, and tables of weights and measures, are convined with chronological indices. What with Mr. Meriam's figures, and the compiler's arrangement, and the publisher's gwood ense, the Almanac is slowether the best of its kind that has yet appeared."
